COURSE OVERVIEW

For most of us, our days are filled with negotiation and conflict. They range from low stakes disputes about meeting schedules to high stakes clashes about strategic direction, and from casual debates to formal boardroom contractual agreements. Effective negotiators get the most out of disputes, not just in terms of the instrumental value they carry away, but also in terms of the relationships and reputations they leave behind. Virtually everyone could stand to improve their negotiation skills and, fortunately, virtually everyone can develop in this area.

This course aims to help students improve their skills in two fundamental ways. One is knowledge-oriented: students learn frameworks and concepts for analyzing conflict. Students acquire terms and models for identifying the type of conflict that exists in a situation and the potential costs and benefits of different strategies and tactics. Based on this, students should be able to interpret situations, plan tactics, and recognize and react to their counterpart’s behavior. A second and complementary route to improving as a negotiator is practice-oriented: students complement their analytical tools with behavioral skills. Negotiation and conflict ultimately come down to behaviors—how a manager opens a potentially volatile conversation, how a mediator uncovers information, how a negotiator frames an offer or a concession. Practicing these behaviors, and understanding how other parties perceive and react to them, is essential to improving as a negotiator. The course provides continuing opportunities for hands-on practice and also provides feedback, discussion, and occasions for reflection.

Through role-play exercises, lecture, reading, and discussion, the course begins with basic dynamics in negotiation and adds complexity in stages, including multiple issues, multiple parties, mediation, agents, and coalitions. Some exercises involve numerical analyses, others revolve around qualitative conflicts. By the end of the course, students should be able to comfortably and confidently approach most any conflict or negotiation: analyzing its nature, understanding their own objectives, and plotting an approach that will give them the best shot at achieving their goals.

CONNECTION TO THE CORE

This course is related to a wide range of topics that are important for developing professionals. In Columbia Business School’s core course sequence, it is perhaps most directly linked to the core leadership course, Lead: People, Teams, Organizations, where students will have received an overview of the topic and enacted a roleplay negotiation. This course dives deeper, focusing in steps on different negotiation dynamics and ultimately addressing even more complex issues. Managerial Negotiations also deals with behavior in competitive contexts and markets, touching on topics dealt with in the Strategy Formulation and Managerial Economics core courses, and with behavior related to persuasive communication and selling, touching on topics dealt with in the Marketing core course.

This course is also connected to the core by embracing the norms of the Columbia Core Culture. Students are expected to be:
- Present: Be on time and present for every session (attendance will tracked)
- Prepared: Complete pre-work as needed and be prepared for cold calling
- Participating: Constructive participation is expected and part of grade (no electronic devices unless explicitly called for by the instructor)

COURSE FORMAT
This is a highly interactive course. It is premised on a basic assumption that understanding and appreciation of negotiations are best achieved via hands-on experiences in combination with lecture, discussion, reading, and reflection on the underlying concepts of negotiation. There will be one or more role-play exercises in nearly every class period. These exercises have been selected to help illustrate points in readings and lectures and to motivate further reflection and reading. These exercises will put you in new, and potentially uncomfortable, situations, but within the relatively safe environment of the classroom. In these exercises, you are urged to try out new and creative behaviors and tactics that have suggested themselves to you from your own reading and reflection.

ATTENDANCE
Because this course is so experiential, attendance at class sessions is essential to getting learning value from the course. Further, because most class sessions involve pairs or groups of students working together, absences have the potential to undermine classmates’ experience. Thus, attendance is required for all class sessions. Absences will carry a considerable grade penalty. Those missing a single session (except for extraordinary circumstances, such as a medical or family emergency) will not be eligible for the highest grade in the course (an ‘H’). Those missing multiple sessions may not earn a passing grade.

Students should provide advance notice regarding any absences through the online attendance report (see link on the course’s Canvas homepage or go to https://tinyurl.com/B8510attendanceS2019)

Any absences not reported through this website will receive a severe grade penalty.

READINGS
Readings will be drawn from several books. Students should purchase the three books noted below and read them as noted in the syllabus to get further insight into the topics the course covers:

  [NOTE: this is not the same as Lewicki, Saunders, and Barry’s volume, Negotiation]

Additional readings will be provided in a reader and/or on the course website.
ASSIGNMENTS AND COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Four components make up your grade: 1) required participation, 2) menu assignments, 3) a real world negotiation analysis, and 4) a final paper. The second-to-last page of this syllabus provides a summary table of assignments.

» Required participation: 40% of grade

Participation includes several components:

- Attendance at all class sessions (see notes above on Attendance)
- Active, substantive involvement in simulations (see Roleplay Ground Rules below)
- Engagement, discussion, and comments in class (quality is more important than quantity)
- Timely completion of the online assessments (one of which is due in advance of Session 1, the other of which is due in advance of Session 3)
- Timely completion of the email negotiation (conducted with a fellow student outside of class), the email negotiation analysis, video analysis (comments to classmate and self analysis), and advance case preparation (for applicable sessions).

» Menu assignments: 25% of grade

To give students some flexibility in managing their workloads and tailoring their learning experience to their interests, four assignments are offered as a menu. To earn the highest grade in the course (an ‘H’), students must earn full credit for at least three of these assignments. To pass the course, students must earn full credit for at least one of these assignments. These assignments will be described in greater detail as the course goes along.

- Reading reflection
- Negotiation coaching exercise
- Dream/worst case situations analysis
- Action planning exercise

» Real world negotiation analysis: 25%

This analysis can be either an individual or two-person project reviewing some kind of real world negotiation or conflict. The topic could be a transaction or deal, but could also be a qualitative dispute or conflict. One approach would be a “real time” analysis of an event that happens during the course itself, such as negotiating with an employer, bargaining with a contractor, or a personal dispute. The paper could cover planning for the conflict in advance (including assumptions or expectations), a description of the conflict itself as it unfolded, and a reflection and analysis of the conflict (e.g., Were any assumptions wrong? What were the economic and relational consequences of the conflict? How might the conflict have gone differently?). Another approach would be a thoughtful analysis of a past conflict or deal, including discussion of the background and context, the dynamics of the conflict or deal itself, and the consequences of the exchange. An effective analysis would also likely feature some observations about what went well/poorly and how things might have gone differently.

Creative approaches are encouraged. The overarching objective is to think carefully about a real world conflict or negotiation and apply some of the concepts and tools featured in the course.
While the details of any given case are important to note and consider, another goal is to coax some larger and more enduring lessons (e.g., good practices) that may be applied elsewhere.

A paragraph or two describing your planned real world negotiation analysis is due in Session 8. Individual papers typically range from 5 to 8 double-spaced pages. The expectations in terms of depth and coverage are expanded with two people on the project (although a two-person paper is not necessarily expected to be twice the length of an individual paper). The choice to work independently or in pairs is up to students. The paper is due in Session 11. We may discuss some of these analyses (if students volunteer to do so) in our final class session.

» Final Project: Paper or Presentation: 10%

The Final Project is NOT mandatory. If you would like an “H” in the class, doing the assignment (paper OR presentation) is necessary (but not sufficient to guarantee an “H”).

The form the final paper takes is flexible, but several models have proven to be meaningful and substantive for students. One is a self-assessment paper in which you analyze yourself, including your style and its strengths and weaknesses, based on your experience in the course, the feedback you received, as well as other experiences. This analysis could culminate in an action plan for developing as a negotiator. Another effective model is to construct a summary personal “theory of negotiation” that reflects what you believe are the fundamental dynamics and best practices of negotiation as they relate to you. This should not be a simple recapitulation of recommendations offered in the class or readings but rather some personalized version of your own negotiation manual that reflects a meaningful amount of reflection, synthesis, and application. Final papers are typically 5-8 double-spaced pages long and are due at 6pm on May 3 after the final class session.

An alternative to submitting a final paper is to prepare and deliver a brief (~5 min) presentation in our final class session. The goal of this presentation will be to teach the class something new about negotiations, not just to summarize the course. If you choose this option, the slides and session notes (additional notes that would allow someone else to understand and deliver the session) are due by Session 11, April 22nd. These notes should be approximately 2-4 pages, double spaced and bulleted. More detail about this option will be provided later.
ROLEPLAY GROUND RULES
Having a constructive learning environment is essential to this course’s effectiveness. Everyone plays a part in this. Here are some ground rules for our roleplay exercises:

1. You are expected to be on time for class meetings and, when applicable, to arrive prepared for in-class negotiation exercises.

2. You should not show your confidential role instructions to other parties during a negotiation, nor should you directly read them aloud. At your discretion, you can choose to speak about your interests to the other side. Once the negotiation is complete, you should still keep your instructions private, unless instructed otherwise. We will debrief most of our cases collectively in class.

3. Feel free to “ad lib” in these exercises to provide rationales and explanations for your character’s preferences—say things you think the character would say. That said, you should adopt the given payoff tables as reflecting your preferences. You should not make up facts that materially change the power distribution of the exercise.

4. The exercises are an opportunity to experiment. Unusual tactics (or at least ones that are different for you) add variety and can benefit the group discussion. However, steer clear of anything that verges on physical intimidation, sexual harassment, or personal abuse.

EXERCISES, RECORDS, AND RESEARCH
Because I want to encourage experimentation, I do not grade based on your negotiation outcomes. Yet I do carefully record the outcomes and, for some exercises, your answers to questions in the exercise materials. Sometimes I will show the overall patterns in this data to demonstrate points about negotiation principles. The data are also used in a continual process of refining exercises and developing new ones. Just as prior students have contributed to your learning experience by contributing this data, you will be contributing to future classes by answering questions about your outcome and tactics in the course of the exercises. Identifying information is removed from the datasets after the term ends, so the records become anonymous at this point. At times in the past, faculty have drawn on these “anonymized” datasets reflecting years of classes for statistical analyses related to research hypotheses concerning negotiation dynamics. If you prefer that any records from your participation in class be deleted from datasets if they are used for any research purpose, please tell the instructor or teaching assistant and your record will be deleted after the class is complete.
PART 1: TWO-PERSON NEGOTIATIONS

Getting to Yes Ch 6

Assignments given
Real-world negotiation paper (required; due Session 11)
Final paper (due Friday, May 3rd, 6 p.m., after Session 12)

Assignments due
Initial online assessment (required; takes ~ 10 minutes, due Thursday January 31st, 6 p.m. – please complete BEFORE Session 1)

SESSION 2 (Feb 4): Distributive bargaining

Follow-up readings
(unsent)
Essentials of Negotiation Ch 2 “Strategy/tactics of distrib. bargaining”
Getting to Yes Ch 8

Assignments given
Negotiation assessment (required; due February 10th, 6 p.m.)

SESSION 3 (Feb 11) Integrative bargaining, Part 1

Follow-up readings
(unsent)
Essentials of Negotiation Ch 3 “Strategy/tactics of integrat. negotiation”; Getting to Yes Ch 1-4; “Know your objectives” (Benoliel & Cashdan) “Scoring a deal” (Ames, Larrick, & Morris)

Assignments given
Video analysis comments to classmate (required; due by Session 7)
Prepare for Session 4 case (required; due by Session 4)
Email negotiation (required; negotiation completed by Session 4)

Assignments due
Negotiation assessment (required; due February 10th, 6 p.m.)

SESSION 4 (Feb 18): Integrative bargaining, Part 2

Follow-up readings
(unsent)
Essentials of Negotiation Ch 4 “Negotiation: Strategy and planning” “Constructive conflict” (Follett)

Assignments given
Email negotiation analysis (required; due by Session 5)

Assignments due
Prepare for Session 4 case (required; due by Session 4)
Email negotiation (required; negotiation completed by Session 4)
PART 2: CONFLICT AND COMMUNICATION DYNAMICS

SESSION 5 (Feb 25): Conflict styles and dynamics

Follow-up readings
(读 by next session)
Difficult Conversations Ch 1-4
“Your bargaining style” (Shell Ch 1)
“Why you need to ask” (Babcock & Laschever)

Assignments given
Self video analysis (required; due in Session 9)
Action planning exercise (menu assignment; due by Session 10)
Reading reflection (menu assignment; due by Session 10)
Dream/worst case situations analysis (menu assignment; due by Session 12)

Assignments due
Email negotiation analysis (required, due by Session 5)

SESSION 6 (March 4): Negotiation contexts: Culture and communication channels

Follow-up readings
(读 by next session)
Essentials of Negotiation Ch 11 “International/cross-cultural negotiation”

SESSION 7 (March 25): Trust and treatment

Follow-up readings
(读 by next session)
Difficult Conversations Ch 5-6
Recommended book for additional insights on trust: Robert Axelrod’s
The Evolution of Cooperation

Assignments given
Self video analysis (required; due by Session 9)
Negotiation coaching exercise (menu assignment; due by Session 12)

Assignments due
Video analysis comments to classmate (required; due by Session 7)

PART 3: BEYOND DYADS

SESSION 8 (April 1): Mediation

Follow-up readings
(读 by next session)
Difficult Conversations Ch 7-12
“Managing Conflict” (Watkins Ch 7)

Assignments due
Draft plan for real world negotiation paper (required; due by Session 8)
SESSION 9 (April 8): Agents and third parties

Follow-up readings (read by next session)  Essentials of Negotiation Ch 5 “Ethics in negotiation”
“Confronting lies and deception” (Malhotra & Bazerman, Ch 9)

Assignments due  Self video analysis (required; due by Session 9)

SESSION 10 (April 15): Coalitions

Follow-up readings (read by next session)  “Multiple parties, coalitions, and teams” (Thompson Ch 9); “Get all the parties right” (Lax & Sebenius); “Map the players, change the game” (Ames)

Assignments given  Prepare for Session 11 case

Assignments due  Reading reflection (menu assignment; due by Session 10)
Action planning exercise (menu assignment; due by Session 10)

SESSION 11 (April 22): Team negotiation

Follow-up readings (read by next session)  Essentials of Negotiation Ch 12 “Best practices in negotiations”
Getting to Yes “In conclusion”; “A primer on personal development” (Ames, Mason, & Carney)

Assignments due  Prepare for Session 11 case
Real-world negotiation paper (required; due by Session 11)
Presentation notes due (if choosing this option for final project)

SESSION 12 (April 29): Conclusion

Assignments due  Negotiation coaching exercise (menu assignment; due by Session 12)
Dream/worst case situations analysis (menu assignment; due by Session 12)
Final paper (due Friday, May 3, 6 p.m., after Session 12)
