The Leader’s Voice: Communicating To Lead Organizations

B term, Spring 2014
Monday, 2:15pm to 5:30pm (U303)
Wednesday 2:15pm to 5:30pm (U303)

PROFESSOR NAME: Brad Aspel
Professor Office Location: 206 Uris
E-mail: ba2120@columbia.edu
Office Hours: by appointment only; Tues 12:30-2:00pm, Thur 10:00-11:30am

TEACHING ASSISTANTS
Jennifer Dyck-Sprout: jdycksprout14@gsb.columbia.edu  Section 1 - Monday, 2:15-5:30pm U303
Bryan Blaise: bblaise14@gsb.columbia.edu  Section 2 - Wednesday, 2:15-5:30pm U303

REQUIRED COURSE MATERIAL
• Please buy Duarte, HBR Guide to Persuasive Presentations
• Other required readings are provided via Canvas
  • Recommended Additional Purchase: Guide to Presentations by Lynn Russell and Mary Munter

COURSE DESCRIPTION
Leadership roles involve a wide range of communication challenges—sharing your vision in a way that sticks, mentoring a colleague through a challenge, rallying demoralized employees, working the room at an industry event, handling tough questions from the media, running meetings in ways that elicit candid conversation and learning.

The goal of this class is to introduce you to concepts and best practices, as well as to offer a safe place to practice. While you will have opportunities to practice public speaking in various forms, this class will also discuss frameworks and the challenges of different types of communication.

The world is full of communication experts: salespersons, actors, screenwriters, political speechwriters, coaches, networkers, public relations experts, diplomats and so forth. When we watch an expert in action, it is tempting to attribute their performance to a mystical gift that the rest of us lack. Yet success in any of these fields most often owes more to method than magic. What looks to us like spontaneous eloquence typically results from applying frameworks and focused practice.

COURSE OBJECTIVES
This class looks to various communication professions for tools and methods that can help business leaders face their communication challenges. We aim to develop two kinds of knowledge—conceptual understanding and procedural skill. Each session will convey frameworks for particular kinds of communication and some active exercises for practicing them. We rely on role-play simulations and personalized feedback (from peers and through video) to hone behavioral skills. Each student will also have the opportunity to receive direct coaching feedback from the Professor on their particular communication and presence.

The topics we will cover in class are:
- Storytelling: Making a Point Memorable
- Coaching: Chats that Change People
- Public Speaking: Moving a Crowd
- Troubleshooting Communication
- Networking & Building Relationships
- Enabling Sustainable Change

ASSIGNMENTS & GRADING

Participation & Individual Class Pre-Assignments (50%): To be in the class, you must be present in the first class and arrive prepared. It will not be possible to add the course if you do not participate in the first session. Given that the exercises are central to the learning, missing any of the subsequent sessions without an excuse will lower your grade by one unit. Participation will be evaluated by your preparedness and your contribution to the learning of your classmates, not based on your performance in the communication exercises. You will be graded on how well you prepared for each class (readings and any class-specific assignments announced during the course) as well as the level of your participation in each class. Part of this grade will include your 2 minute presentation to the full class, with the focus on how well you had prepared, how much you were able to implement class learnings to date, and your willingness to take feedback and adjust.

Final Assignment (50%): There are four parts to your final assignment:
- Self-Assessment (2 parts): You will grade yourself on your own development as well as on your ability to coach those within your coaching group (including the coaching assessment you give to those in your coaching group)
- Coaching Group Assessment: Graded by peers in your coaching group on the development of your ability to coach others as well as their assessment of how you developed during the course
- Presentation: At some point before the end of the course, you need to be observed by someone in your coaching group giving a presentation (audience >6)
- Action Plan: This will be something you will write up and turn in by May 6 that will include thoughts, assessment and implement of feedback (including 360, coaching group peers, other classmates) and class learnings.

There will not be a final exam for this course